Marisabel Morales – Reflective Journal

Joshua Balderas – Lab Notebook & example

Katherine Rodriguez – Contribution Journal

L04 Contribution Journal – Exploratory Data Analysis

For Lab 04, our group divided the assignment responsibilities among the three team members so that each person had a specific role in completing the project.

Joshua was responsible for completing the coding portion of the Lab 04 notebook. He worked through the Exploratory Data Analysis exercises using the Titanic dataset, executed the required code cells, generated the visualizations, and reviewed the outputs related to missing values, numerical and categorical variables, survival patterns, fares, passenger class, age, and other features included in the analysis.

Marisabel was responsible for preparing the group Reflective Journal. She reviewed the completed notebook and the results from the Exploratory Data Analysis in order to explain what the group learned from the lab. Her contribution focused on the importance of understanding the dataset before modeling, identifying missing information, recognizing outliers and imbalanced data, and using visualizations to discover patterns and relationships that may not be obvious from summary statistics alone. She also connected the EDA process with the preparation required for future machine learning projects.

Katherine was responsible for preparing the Contribution Journal and documenting how the responsibilities for Lab 04 were divided among the team members. Her contribution was to organize and clearly describe each member's role in the project so that the individual participation of the group was properly documented.

Through this division of responsibilities, the group completed the required notebook, Reflective Journal, and Contribution Journal for Lab 04. Each member was responsible for a specific part of the assignment and contributed to the completion of the final submission.
